he had arranged for a special session of court at 3 o'clock before Judge H. C. Speak.

The sheriff appeared at a window and announced that special trial had been arranged for the prisoner, and that he would be brought before it at 3 o'clock in afternoon. This was greeted with jeers.

The outer door to the jail, a wooden barrier, was soon battered down, and the mob gained entrance to the first floor. The sheriff's wife pleaded with them to refrain from violence and let the law take its course. Sheriff Fulgham retreated with his prisoner to the third floor, where he locked himself in with Clark. The lynchers chose strategy as the most effective way out of the difficulty. A large amount of tar, feathers and oil was secured and piled upon the cement floor of the jail and a match applied. A suffocating smoke arose and spread quickly through the jail. The sheriff was seen to disappear from the sheriff was seen to disappear from the window and the mob waited. He did not appear, and Chief-of-Police David Overton, broke through the crowd and up the stairs through the binding and suffocating smoke, Reaching the third floor he found Sheriff Fulgham in a semi-conscious condition.
